

2015 YEAR IN REVIEW

At the Center, we help values-driven leaders develop themselves and others, build flourishing companies, and transform business and society. Thanks for partnering with us to make our mission possible in 2015. Here's what we're celebrating:

1 incredible new building

Thanks to the support of generous donors, Benedictine University's College of Business moved into the state-of-the-art new Goodwin Hall of Business this fall. We are delighted with our new home.

50+ presentations & 60+ publications

From academic conferences to practitioner events, from blogs to peer-reviewed journals, our faculty and students are leading the global conversation on values-driven leadership.

62 current students and alumni

In addition to the 17 graduates of the doctoral program in values-driven leadership, for senior executives, we have 45 students currently enrolled.

Students from 15 states + 5 countries

Our reach is growing, with students from 15 states plus Canada, France, Germany, Ghana, and Mexico.

108,000 views on our YouTube channel

Leaders turn to our channel for insights into growing values-driven businesses.

200 guests at 2 Senior Executive Roundtables

These high-quality learning events continue to attract wide audiences.

a few more numbers:

2,268 cups of coffee

5,830 pages read per student

39,200 emails sent

COMING IN 2016

Watch for the launch of our master's program in values-driven leadership

Find our Return on Values research featured regularly on Forbes.com

Beginning 4/1, apply for Cohort 4 of our doctoral program; 2017 start date

Enroll in new Executive Education offerings: multi-day workshops

Help us celebrate as a new cohort of doctoral students graduates this May